Matthew Hale

Director and Co-Founder of Next Generation IT

A quick fire, life changing interview

➔ What is your role, why did you get into it and ultimately what would you like to achieve?

I am IT consultant and director at NGIT. I founded NGIT, along with my fellow director, Tom Heyworth, in order to provide IT services with a personal touch. I want our company to stand out from our competition and to be leaders in the IT sector.

➔ What makes your company great?

Our employees; they define our company and all strive to be the best in their fields. There is a shared belief in what we do and how we do it. Everyone works together seamlessly to provide the best possible service to our clients.

➔ What has been your greatest achievement?

Helping to build the company to where it is today and recruiting quality staff, ensuring that it continues to grow while providing a consistently high level of service.

➔ What is the greatest challenge your company is facing today?

Adapting to the fast changing world of IT and embracing the challenges and opportunities that emerging technologies bring.

➔ Which person would you most like to work for or with?

Richard Branson; I admire his drive and enthusiasm for success.

➔ What five words would your colleagues use to describe you?

I asked around the office and had several suggestions, including "enthusiastic, always willing to help", "he always gives 110 percent" and "tight on making the tea!"

➔ You have a client visiting Guernsey, where would you recommend they eat out?

Da Nello's, it's in the heart of town and you can't beat the food and service.

➔ Which local business, charity or organisation deserves a pat on the back?

Without a doubt, Les Bourgs Hospice for having the courage to develop their new building without the certainty of full funding in this challenging economic climate. We are pleased to support such a worthy charity.
